

Teach-In
UNIVERSITY of PENNSYLVANIA

Teaching Race

A Roundtable

3/19

10AM-11:30AM

Van Pelt Library, Class of 1955 Room

Panelists:

David Eng

Richard L. Fisher Professor of English and Asian American Studies

Sebastián Gil-Riaño

Assistant Professor, History and Sociology of Science

Susan Lindee

Professor and Chair, History and Sociology of Science

Quayshawn Spencer

Assistant Professor, Philosophy

Moderator:

Jim English

*John Welsh Centennial Professor of English
Director, Wolf Humanities Center*

The faculty on this panel are doing leading-edge research on the cultural, philosophical, historical, and political dimensions of race and racial science, and teaching their research to undergraduates across the spectrum of humanities and science majors. How do they communicate the complexities of their research to a diverse constituency of college students, many of whom may find the very topic of race difficult to discuss?

As a highly fraught and divisive topic in our society, race presents special challenges to educators. This panel will highlight the rigor, creativity, and passion with which Penn's faculty are meeting that challenge.

Penn Teach-In will address "the production, dissemination, and use of knowledge." The series of events are family friendly and include panels and talks, exhibitions, and film screenings.

A Humanities At Large program of the Wolf Humanities Center.

Free and open to the public.

